ACS Given Performance-Based Award by Department of Education for Student Loan Contract

DALLAS, TEXAS: February 2, 2009 – Affiliated Computer Services, Inc. (NYSE: ACS) today announced an extension to its contract with the U.S. Department of Education to support servicing and collections for the federal government’s direct student loan program. The award is valued at $190 million and covers the 2009 calendar year.

With the performance-based award, ACS enters the sixth year of the Common Services for Borrowers (CSB) contract, which consists of a five-year base period followed by three potential performance-based award years and two option years.

ACS was granted the first of the performance-based award years for exceeding operational standards on a series of 47 metrics, measured monthly by the Department of Education.

Under the CSB contract, ACS manages the business operations for more than $140 billion in student loans to more than 10 million borrowers. ACS provides services that include:

- processing of borrower-related repayments,
- generating and mailing millions of paper notices and bills,
- generating millions of electronic notices and reminders, and
- handling inbound telephone and written inquiries from borrowers and schools.

“This performance award by the Department of Education demonstrates the continued servicing partnership that ACS has with the department, schools and student loan borrowers nationwide,” said Tim Conway, senior vice president and managing director of ACS’ Federal Solutions line of business. “ACS has served the department since 1993, and we are proud to be a part of the long-term team in the delivery of student loans and crucial support services to millions of student and parent borrowers.”

As the largest provider of business process solutions and one of the largest IT service providers to the nation’s public sector, ACS serves as an operational partner to more than 1,700 agencies at all levels of government located in every state in the U.S.

The work of ACS touches millions of people every day.
